Darkness Still Remembers

Years have faded into grey
Those rooms still taste like yesterday
Time has buried every sound
Still, our sins crawl through the ground

Buried ghosts keep breathing in
Blackened memories settle in

Darkness still remembers us (remembers you)
Keeps our ghosts inside the room
Does my shadow cross your bed?
Or am I finally dead?

Sheets go black beneath the night
Skin dissolves in borrowed light
Maybe somewhere in that heat
Old ghosts rise between the sheets

Something wicked stirs within
Blackened memories settle in

Darkness still remembers us (remembers you)
Keeps our ghosts inside the room
Does my shadow cross your bed?
Or am I finally dead?

Maybe nothing haunts you now
Yeah, maybe I’m what haunts me now

Darkness still remembers us (remembers you)
Keeps me locked inside that room
Does your shadow cross my bed?
Or am I sleeping with death?

Darkness still remembers us (remembers you)
(remembers you)
(remembers you)